

International Leaders Inspire and Challenge Educators

Convocation is a time of celebration and inspiration for staff as the school year begins. World-wide speaker, trainer, and energetic dynamo Paul Vitale shared his vision of educational leadership through stories and instruction, through laughter and reflection. Speaking in the Fine Arts Center, he emphasized collaboration and our responsibility to others.

Vitale noted:

- To read means to learn.
- To learn means to share.
- To share means to encourage.
- To encourage means to influence.

Vitale has written motivational books, compiled books of inspirational aphorisms and has developed a leadership curriculum for students. Speaking from his experience with a variety of organizations and businesses from tourism to healthcare, from sports to chambers of commerce, his message included the leadership steps of daring to dream courageously, establishing a course of action, empowering others to imagine, uniting a common bond, and being resilient like none other.
